HAVING A GOD-ITUDE

Our Lord's presentation of the beatitudes is probably one of the more famous of His teachings. While we know many stories of the bible, healings that Jesus performed, actions both liked and disliked by the people, his sermons and teachings are what we reflect upon the most. Likewise, the beatitudes have been given to us in art and in song, at weddings and at funerals, and in different translations. This presentation given by Luke "on a stretch of level ground" is in contrast to those given by Matthew in the "Sermon on the Mount." We can see the difference right away as Luke presents a less spiritual application with "blessed are you who are poor" making the distinction right away between those who have and those who have not rather than Matthew who speaks to the heart with "blessed are the poor in spirit." So if we are to take what is given to us in Luke's gospel, we must find our place not in spiritual terms but for face value. Basically, God is supposed to be at the center and focus of everything we are and are called to be. Looking at our giftedness in this world, we need to recognize everything as a benefit of our relationship with Him and so pattern our lives. Thus we are poor without God and all he has given us. That doesn't mean we live in poverty, but our graciousness for having been given so much should be reflected in every relationship and in everything that we do! The be-attitudes can simply be stated as the "attitude to be" or to have for that matter, a God-itude of sorts, seeing and reacting towards all of life in every situation as having been blessed by God and His presence. Where do we go from here? We must be responsible then for where we are in our relationship with God and how that relationship plays out in our lives. Only we can give answer to the kind of God-itude we have!

God Bless You!
Rev. Kev
